Journal of Example Climate 14 (2024) 142-151, doi:10.5555/uhi.2024.0142

Surface temperature and tree canopy in 40 mid-sized cities

R. Ortega and M. Lin

Abstract. We compare afternoon land surface temperature with tree canopy cover in 40 mid-sized cities. Each ten points of canopy cover lowered the surface temperature of a block by about 1.4 degrees. The canopy rasters are in the canopy data archive, and the analysis is in the project repository. An interactive map shows the afternoon temperature of every block.

References

[1] E. Varga. Cool roofs: a ten-year field comparison. Journal of Example Climate, 2022.

[2] K. Mensah and L. Duarte. Reflective coatings and indoor temperature in social housing. Example Buildings Review, 2019.

[3] S. Ivanova. Albedo, asphalt and afternoon peaks. Example Urban Studies, 2018.